

MEDIA STATEMENT: REDDAM SCHOOL AND INSPIRED GROUP

Next year, Reddam House Sydney's primary, middle and senior schools will join the three Reddam Early Learning Schools in Sydney as part of Inspired education group.

This is a natural next step for Reddam House Sydney which was founded by Inspired President and renowned educationalist Graeme Crawford.

Graeme was responsible for developing the Reddam educational model here in Sydney before establishing the international Reddam network of 11 schools and colleges. All other Reddam schools are already part of Inspired.

Inspired is a leading group of 53 premium schools in the UK, Europe, Australia, Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America, with an extended international family of over 40,000 students. Inspired is unique in being led by top educationalists worldwide.

This move will strengthen Reddam's unique educational approach and connect it to world-leading teaching expertise and students to exclusive international opportunities.

Reddam students will be able to take advantage of global educational and cultural experiences provided by Inspired group such as exchange programs and global camps, equipping them for future opportunities in a globalised world.

From a day-to-day perspective it will be business as usual at Reddam House Sydney with no change to principals, staff, programs, class sizes, school premises or fees. The Inspired model operates on a for-profit basis and does not require public subsidy or government support. The relationship with Inspired can only enhance our already exceptional offering by connecting Sydney with global peers of excellence.
